The Biology Department invites applications for a full-time, tenure-track position at the Assistant Professor level to begin August 2016. The successful candidate’s specialty and the needs of the department will dictate the specific teaching responsibilities. Contributing to a wide range of departmental courses (i.e., introductory, capstone, seminars courses) is required. While this is a full-time teaching position, advising and college service are also expected. Research opportunities also exist.

A Ph.D. in Biology or a related field is required and teaching experience is highly desirable. The successful candidate will complement the existing expertise in the department. While the exact specialty is open, a broad knowledge of animal physiology is preferred.

Applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vita, one letter of recommendation on letterhead, unofficial transcripts, teaching and research interests, a statement of teaching philosophy at a liberal arts school and three references with complete contact information, including telephone numbers to biosearch@adrian.edu. Final candidates will be asked to send official undergraduate and graduate transcripts. Review of completed applications will begin Jan 15, 2016 and continue until position is filled.
